Dedication

To one who has taught us that education is learning to live graciously . . . to one who has helped us to realize that learning does not stop with the completion of school . . . to one who has inspired us to meet life and the future courageously . . . to one who so generously gives of her time to all phases of our school life . . . to one who has served Landon since the doors of the school first opened and whose life is so closely entwined with its growth . . . to one who has been instrumental in the development of the democratic principles and traditions of Landon . . . to one who is our friend . . . with all our love, appreciation, and admiration, we dedicate this book.

Our 1951 LANDONIAN is for you . . .

Best Wishes, Peggy -

From The Principal's Desk...

LANDON JUNIOR, SENIOR

George H. Wood, Principal
Sam I. Smith, Jr., Assistant Principal
Orra Eastburn, Dean of Girls

HIGH SCHOOL

Thacker Avenue
Jacksonville 7, Florida

1951

Dear Students,

It has been our privilege to spend this, another outstanding year at Landon together - a year never to be forgotten - a year filled with the rich experiences of school life - of activities - fun - and friendships. Each experience here in school, if properly interpreted, establishes the goals that are posted along your highway to success.

Our school with its high standards and honored traditions has endeavored to offer you the best possible preparation for life. It is my commission to you, as your principal, to chart your destiny with resolution, purpose, and inflexible determination.

The future is yours, and this book with its memories will enrich that future for you.

Sincerely,
George H. Wood.

It is often and truly said, "It's the principle of the thing;" but at Landon High School it is also frequently said that it is the Assistant Principal of the thing that counts in a boy's ability to place himself and his potentialities in the proper setting. Our assistant principal has proved to the students of Landon that education is a process of growing up mentally, spiritually, and educationally. He is "on call" at all times and the students as well as the faculty, have found that he has combined his job as assistant administrator with that of confidant, friend, and sounding board for all the interminable and confusing problems of the teacher-pupil-parent relationship. In spite of the turmoil and vicissitudes of school life as an assistant administrator, Mr. Smith finds time to smile and pass on to all Landonites the happy faculty of understanding and caring. It is people like him who make school experiences worth the having.

The Dean of Girls Speaks:

"Rupert Brooke, the English poet, in his poem, 'The Soldier,' says that wherever he might be that corner would be 'forever England.' I like to think that wherever you seniors may be in the coming years, that you will have with you something that will be FOREVER LANDON . . . the Landon of the boundless enthusiasm of pep meetings, football games and hayrides . . . the Landon of the serious side: classes, examinations, hours in the library . . . the Landon of good fellowship: club meetings, in the halls before school, athletic trips . . . the Landon that has given you some special inspiration: your favorite class or teacher, an auditorium speaker, the vision opened up by a book or a word, or some special kindness remembered.

So many things go to make up this Landon which you will have with you, but the main ingredient is hard to define. Perhaps it is that intangible feeling of pride in the school; the knowledge that Landon traditions are worthy of your loyalty; and the deep feeling that your memories will keep you in tune with the best that the school has tried to give you.

My wish for each of you is that the Landon you carry with you will be a happy and inspiring memory, and in your hearts there will always be a place FOREVER LANDON."

SENIOR HORIZONS • • • •

We stand, upon the edge of Time, as seniors, looking at the climb we've made upon the Bridge of Life. Amidst the darkness and the strife we pause and think and look ahead, and realize our past is dead. With graduation comes a world of hope and faith and love impearled. Twelve years of labor, maybe more, we worked; and now this door of learning is unlocked to us. We pause upon the threshold, thus, and ponder at our future years. Our hearts feel sudden, stinging fears; suppose we fail at our new task? "What should we do or say?" we ask. Before—our work was planned and set. We studied hard, we thought, and yet—Those times when minds were out of doors on baseball games and foreign shores (on any varied thing but this), we could not help but fully miss that topic. But some future day, someone may look at us and say, "What of this, or that, or these?" We would not know, and soon disclose the folly of that wasted time.

But lo—we hear the distant chime that summons us to leave you here. The notes ring loud and clear. We must depart and leave behind our schoolday treasures and our books. And now, with no more backward looks, proceed ahead, and carry on only thoughts to build upon the hopes and fears of youth itself. We put all else upon the shelf, and start anew, with strength of heart, to plunge into this fearsome part. Where do we go? What shall we do? The ones who know are very few. Our voices quiver as we talk; our courage trembles as we walk upon the summit of the Bridge. We step alone from the last ridge of childhood, where we were as one; together, happy; now—alone. We face toward new horizons; hope and patience in a wider scope of thinking than we had known before. For faith in God and love of man have upheld youth since Time began. So onward we will trudge our way, and hope that those behind will say, "We won't forget you; we'll not fail to tread this same well-beaten trail."

You've seen and remembered each face;
Look well, under-grads, for soon 'twill be you
Who stand in their most cherished place!*

The sheepskins they rightly have earned;

Watch toward the future; the past that was dead
Now lives on each page of this book!*

Every Landon girl looks forward to the time when she becomes a member of the SENIOR GIRLS' CLUB, an organization for the fostering of those friendships that will be treasured throughout the years to come.

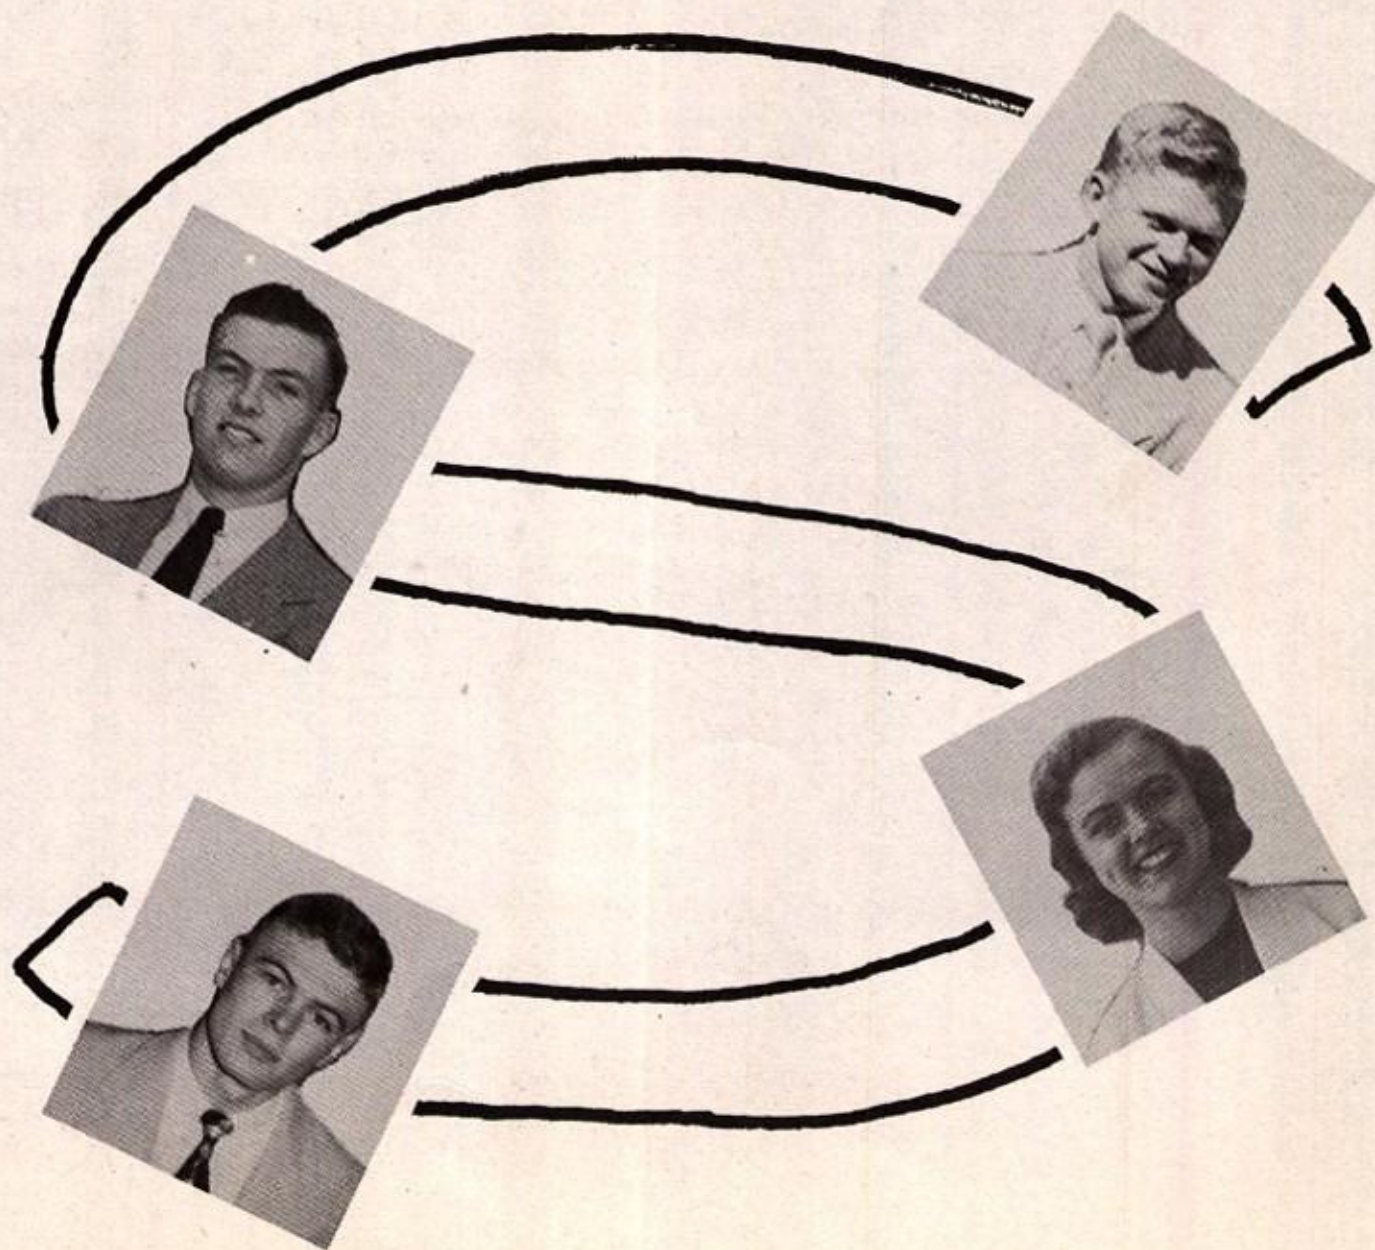

Highlighting the social activities are the annual Little Sister Party, the Christmas Dance, and the luncheon at the end of the year.

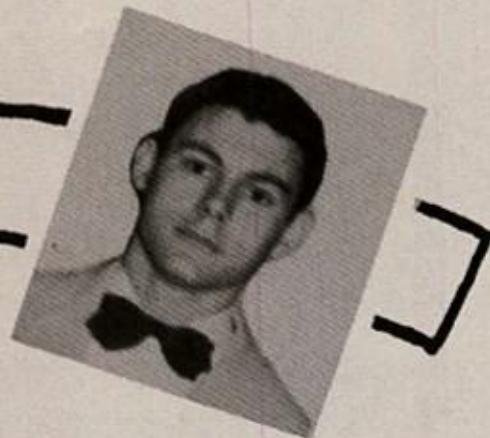

"To promote better fellowship between the members of the senior class." That's the aim of the SENIOR FELLOWS CLUB at Landon. The club is open to every boy in the senior class and besides the many worthwhile projects they also sponsor social activities and bring their year to an end with a banquet in the Spring.

QUILL AND SCROLL is an "International Honorary Society for High School Journalists," and a club of which Landon is duly proud. Membership to the society is judged on a basis of ability, achievement, and interest in journalism. Only juniors and seniors are eligible, and they must be in the top third of their class.

Staff members of the Landonian and "Lion's Roar" are first recommended by the director or respective publication editors. Quill and Scroll membership, besides being an honor in itself, strengthens the work and raises the standards of the yearbook and newspaper. It creates a goal of achievement for the members of the school publications, and provides an award for the best journalists on each staff.

Landon Band Presents Mid Winter Concert

A mid-winter band concert was recently added to the schedule of activities at Landon. Landon has reason to be proud of the band for the swell performance presented last Tuesday night in the auditorium.

The results of Mr. Cook's and the band member's efforts showed forth as they played such notable pieces as: Noel Cowards "I'll See You Again"; Irene Overture Children's Prayer from Hansel and Gretel and "Reverie" by Debussy.

Latin America was represented in the concert by a gay, fast rhythm of the Samba called "Broadcast from Brazil."

"Variety is the spice of life." This was illustrated as the string shifted from the guitars, castanets of Brazil to the boxes of the United States. "Time Out For a while" which was a modern jazz tune.

The purpose of the JUNIOR CLASSICAL LEAGUE is to encourage among the young people of our country an interest in and appreciation for the civilization, language, literature, and art of ancient Greece and Rome, and to give them some understanding of the debt of our own culture to that of classical antiquity. This year the Junior Classical League has taken part in the Saturnalia celebration during December and plans to participate in a state wide Latin Forum at Tampa in the spring of 1951.

Dear Peggy,
 I guess I might as well sign yer ole Sandonian after all! It sure has been fun this year and I sure have enjoyed being ^{Best Wishes} ~~your~~ ^{To the Class of 1951} friend. You sure have given me a swell time and some (rather unusual?) experiences. I guess that you and Eddie have been kinda mixed up a little at times an'
 sometimes you thought he didn't love ya but at ^{Member F.D.I.C.} ~~least~~ ^{now} you must know he's loved ya all along (just like
 I have). I know everything's gotten un-scrambled now. It's got to be!!! I'm not much at writing I guess, but I just wanted to tell you how much fun ~~and~~ it's been. I hope it will be this way next year.
 (Of course, without the fight) I guess
 I'd better stop and find out ~~as~~ what's goin' on. Don't forget me.

Love,
 Ellen

LONDON—34 WEST PALM—0

The Lions started the season with a bang, turning back a strong Wildcat eleven in a display of things to come.

LONDON—19 PLANT—6

The Lions faced an inspired Tampa team in the Gator Bowl, and after only a 7-6 half-time lead went on to defeat the hard-playing Plant Panthers.

LONDON—37 HARDING—19

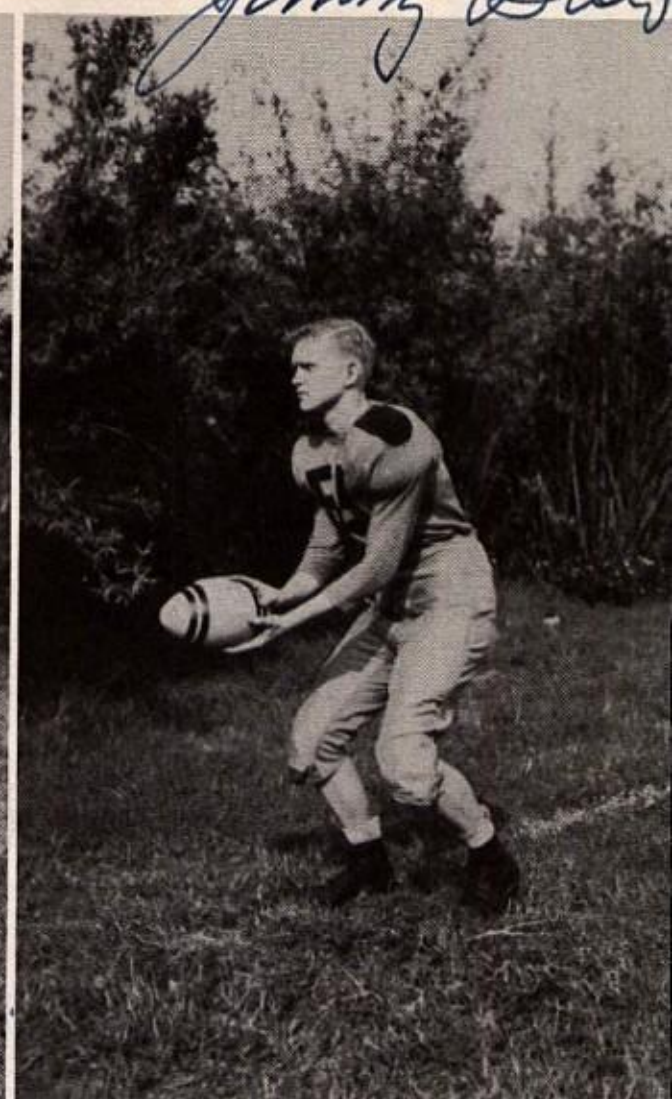

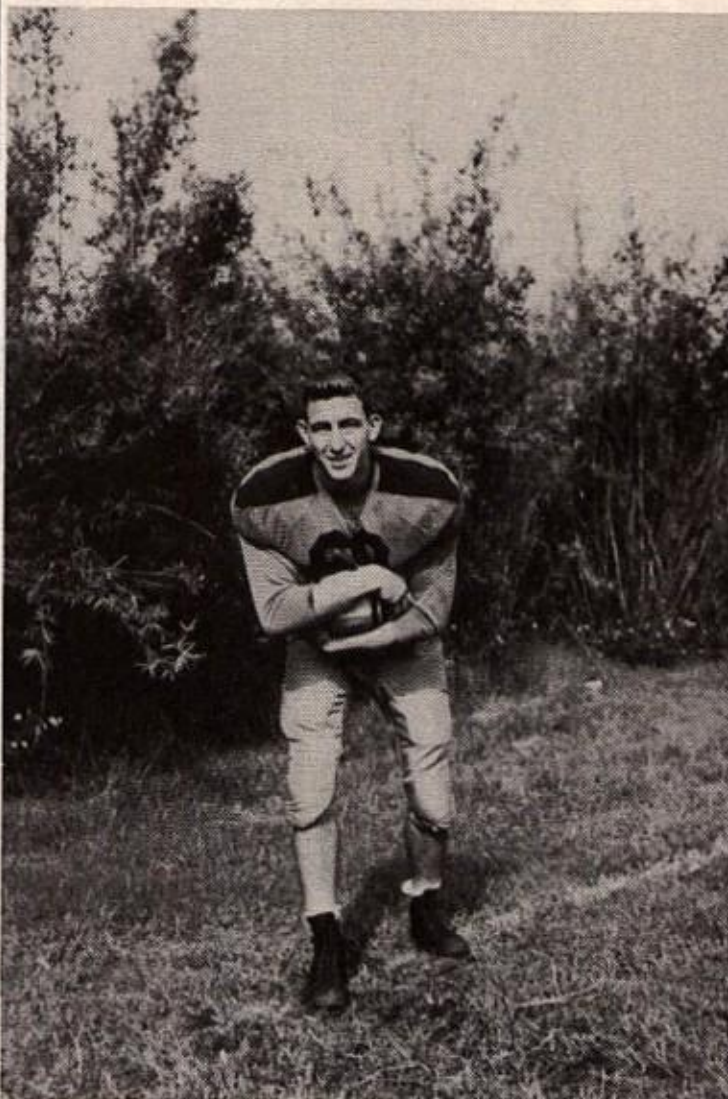

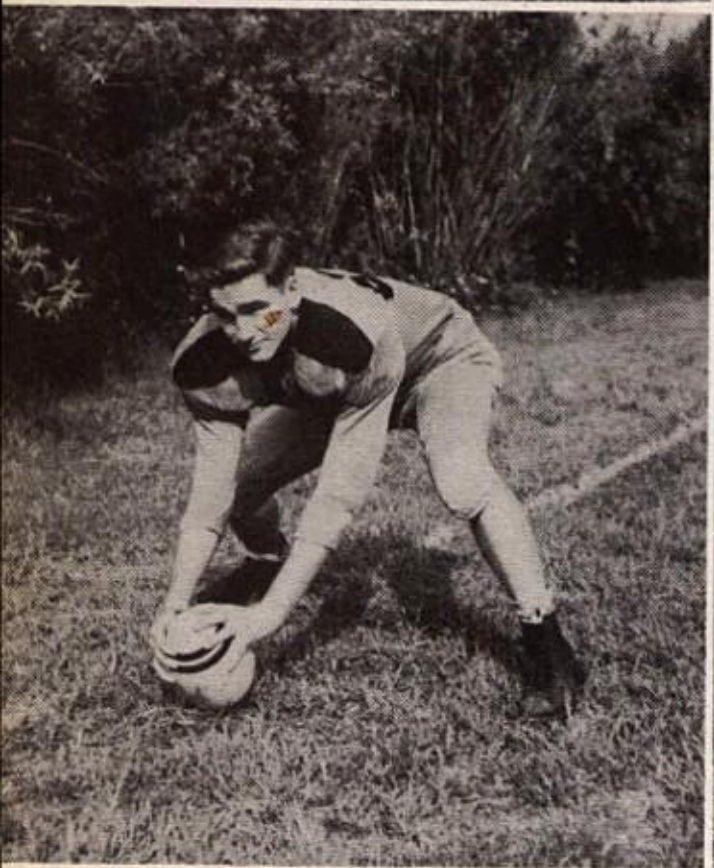

After trailing 7-6 at half-time, the Lions came back to smother the Harding High Rams with a deadly passing attack. This was a hard game for the Lions at first as they faced a victory-starved, powerful North Carolina team before an enthusiastic homecoming crowd.

LONDON—40 CENTRAL HIGH—0

The greatly outweighed Lions went into the Gator Bowl determined to show the Tennesseans the Landon version of the single wing. As the score indicates, the visitors received a lesson they will long remember. This game was designated as the first annual Homecoming Game of the Landon Alumni.

Everyone played good ball from the most praised first string star to the lowest "J.R." Chosen as outstanding players were M. B. Chafin, back and Phil Hartley, center.

LANDON—14 LEE—7

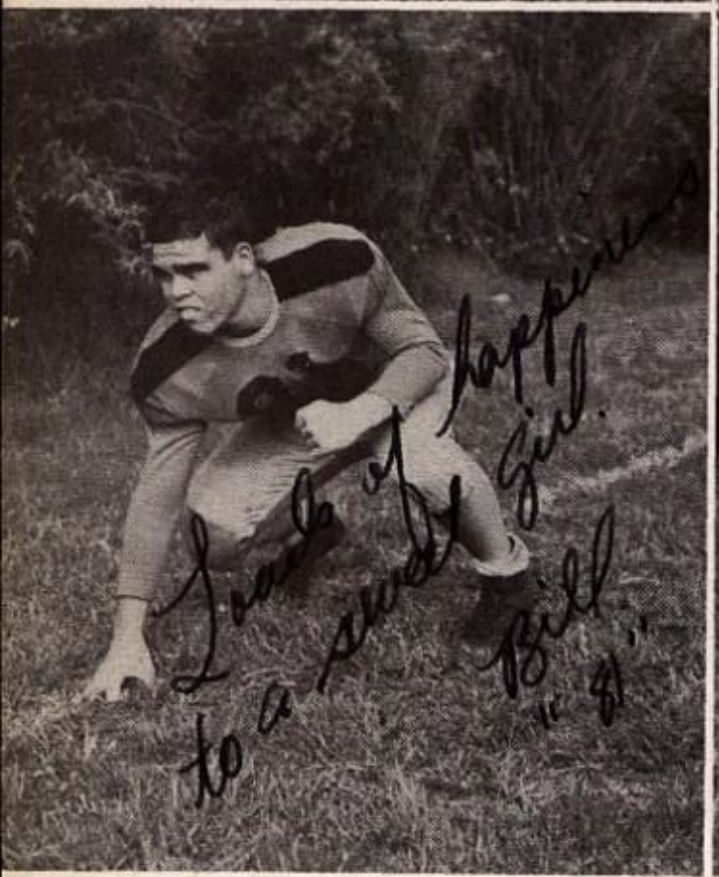

The Lions had been "up" for this game all year but due to tension failed to click in the first half. Behind 7-0 at the half, the Lions came back to win in a sudden display of power. The turning point came when the Generals punted and Phil Tadlock hauled the ball back 75 yards to the end-zone behind blocking by the whole team. It was in this game that Landon's linemen really stood out.

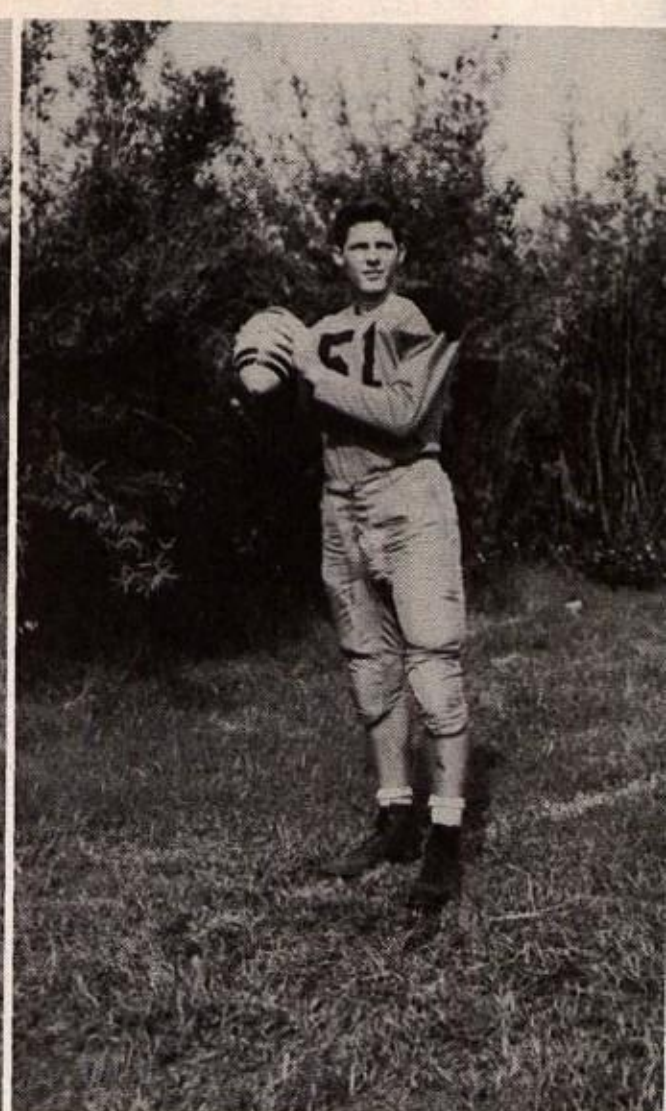

*Reggie,

WE WISH TO ACKNOWLEDGE . . .

As this year's LANDONIAN goes to press, we realize how much of its success is due to so many who have gone out of their way to aid us in innumerable ways. Without them our book's completion would never have been possible.

To the Burroughs, the McGehees, the San Jose Country Club, the Bell Telephone Company, and, particularly, the Ambroses, we owe a special acknowledgement. They graciously opened their homes and grounds for us to take our feature pictures. We feel that such settings as theirs were ideal.

There have been times when it was essential for us to call on the faculty for patience and a bit of "bear with us, it will all be over soon." They all put up with our absences, our requests, graciously. We could never have put out the book, had they not done so.

In the many times we have been to Miss Eastburn, Mr. Wood or Mr. Smith for advice, help, or just permission to do something, they have never failed to give us their time and complete attention until the matter has been settled. Without such a perfect administration we might have been blocked at times, but they have really done more than their share in helping us produce the book.

No publication can be a success without an efficient and capable staff. We are justly proud of this book, for the whole staff has done its best to give you a yearbook which will remain in your memory as the best. None of this would have been possible without the guidance and instruction of our capable Publications' Director, Mrs. Axton.

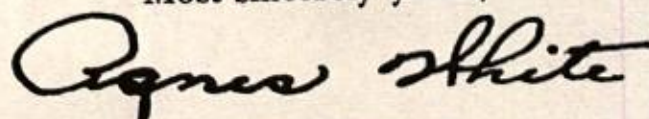

The pictures in a yearbook are what make or break it. A good photographer is essential to the production of good pictures. Mrs. Azar at Cohens has been such a marvel; the junior and senior pictures are excellent, and she did her best under difficulties. Mr. Spottswood deserves much recognition, too, for his Feature pictures. Our versatile principal did a stupendous job on the rest of them.

Finally, we would like to thank Walt Disney Productions for their generosity in allowing our art staff to recreate and adopt their lion sketches which they sent to us. Below is quoted their permission:

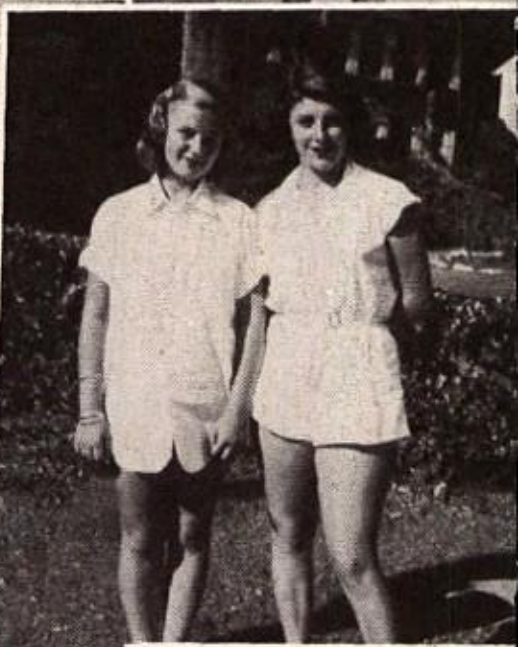

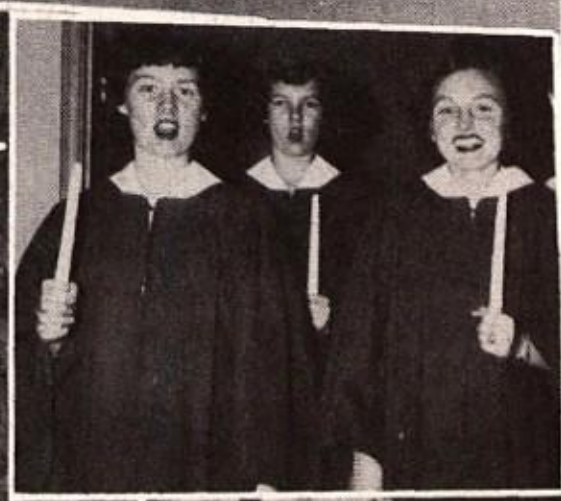

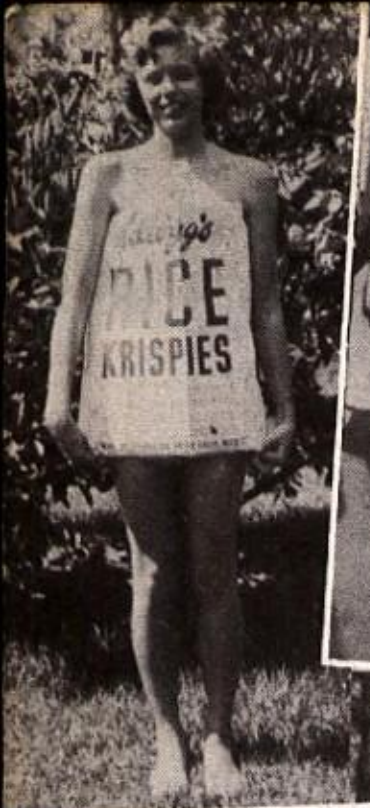

"By special permission, the theme of this yearbook has been based upon, and the illustrations herein have been adapted from, original Walt Disney illustrations, copyright, Walt Disney Productions."

We have tried to acknowledge all the many kind gestures, and the help which people have extended to us. We express now our humble appreciation to everyone who has in any way, however great or small the contribution, donated time and effort to the production of the 1951 LANDONIAN.

Most sincerely yours,

AGNES WHITE
